REGULATORY EVOLUTION

European Commission decided to reform MMF landscape and implement a new regulation for Money Market Funds (MMFs) in Europe even though already regulated by the UCITS/AIFM directive.

20 July 2017 - Entry into force of the MMFR published in the EU Journal Official on 30 June 2017.

MMFs had until 21 July 2018 to comply with MMFR while existing MMFs have until 21 January 2019.

On 19 July 2019, ESMA issued 2 set of guidelines regarding the stress testing on MMFs and reporting money market funds to NCA.

Main changes adopted

1. Creation of 2 types of C-NAV Funds : 1. Public debt CNAV (99.5% invested in government debts); 2. Low volatility NAV (invested in high quality of asset with low pricing variation & stress test).
2. Redemption gates/liquidity fees have been imposed to C-NAV funds.
3. KYC Reporting.
4. External support is prohibited in case of high market turbulence.

FOCAL POINTS

Asset managers/MMFs must:

1) carry out stress test scenarios as well as create internal credit risk assessment and provide further information to investors in addition to UCITS and AIFM directives.

2) set up new tools to deal with “know your customer” rules in the sense of knowing their likely redemption requirements, nothing to do with AML policy.

New requirements incur costs that could damage MMFs performance and reduce attractiveness of this product for investors, in particular during periods of low and/or negative interest rate.

FOR YOUR CONSIDERATION

- ❑ Lots of debates occurred between pros and cons C-NAV MMFs. Some European Parliament (EP) members/policymakers were not satisfied with final text approved by the EP in April 2015, certainly because CNAV MMFs continue to be offered to retail investors. If C-NAV MMFs continue to exist even though less permissive, the future of those MMFs can be challenged if too expensive to comply with new requirements.
- ❑ For IOSCO, FSB, ESRB: CNAV MMFs represent a systemic threat for the financial system giving the impression to be risk-free. In its March 2015 - Consultation Paper, EBA identified MMFs as shadow banking entities even if MMFs operate under UCITS / AIFMD.
- ❑ 12 July 2023- US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) adopts new MMF Reforms and Amendments to mainly increase minimum liquidity requirements. European Commission might inspire from SEC to propose new changes to current MMF regulation.
